From oil paintings to sculptural works, this month's bright, bold and dynamic exhibitions are sure to catch your attention.

It's officially the best time of the year with art fairs, book festivals and music concerts abound. Now, I know you've got Art Central and Art Basel pencilled in this month, but after you're done checking out the fair, remember to circle back to the individual gallery spaces. March brings to Hong Kong new exhibitions such as Ernest Chang's "Space Rich" at The Stallery WCH, graffiti and street art-focused show "City As Studio" at K11 MUSEA and the much-loved "BE@RBRICK WORLDWIDE TOUR 3" for its first international run at Artelli. Check out our picks this month.

Space Rich

Ernest Chang, "Son of Man"

When: 16 March to 4 June

Opening this month until early June, "Space Rich" is a solo exhibition by local gallerist and artist Ernest Chang featuring 14 silkscreen pieces and four sculptures. Similar to Chang's previous exhibition "Bling Dynasty" in 2021, the new show will incorporate recognisable figures from pop culture and luxury brands to entice viewers. Highlights include Son of Man, which depicts Morty from the popular series Rick and Morty with his face obscured by an iPhone, a visual pun referencing the apple obscuring the central figure's face in René Magritte's eponymous Son of Man; and The Lovers II, which shows two figures from the comic series Fantastic Four kissing with their heads shrouded and iPhones floating around them, again alluding to an eponymous painting by Magritte.
